

Regulations which encourage and preserve diversity in the information and opinion expressed in the media are essential to the health of American society and the advancement of science, art and all other areas of culture in America. Do not change the current restrictions on media ownership.